

Year Eight Test

Cue for Treason

Using material from the first four chapters, write a letter from Sir Philip Morton to one of his friends in London, Sir David Vicars.

Sir Philip writes about the difficulties he has experienced in Cumberland with the land inherited from his grandfather.

You should include the following points:

- his building of the stone wall to reclaim the common land;
- the destruction of the stone wall;
- his determination to track down the culprits, especially the owner of the green cap;
- his visit to Penrith and the theatre;
- his sighting of the owner of the green cap at the theatre and the unaccountable disappearance of his suspect;
- his determination that the suspect will be captured.

Year Eight Test

Cue for Treason

Using material from the first four chapters, write a letter from Sir Philip Morton to one of his friends in London, Sir David Vicars.

Sir Philip writes about the difficulties he has experienced in Cumberland with the land inherited from his grandfather.

You should include the following points:

- his building of the stone wall to reclaim the common land;
- the destruction of the stone wall;
- his determination to track down the culprits, especially the owner of the green cap;
- his visit to Penrith and the theatre;
- his sighting of the owner of the green cap at the theatre and the unaccountable disappearance of his suspect;
- his determination that the suspect will be captured.