

Character cards

Exactly like the show Whose Line is it Anyway – hand out the cards to three or four students who then attend the party of another. The host of the party has to guess the ‘characteristic’ of each of their guests.

You think you are skiing
You behave as if you are famous but you are not
You believe you are the Prime Minister or President
You think you’re on an Oprah type chat show
You think you’re in a racing car
You have an invisible friend with you
You are unable to tell the truth
You are convinced someone is spying on you
You are insulted by everything anyone says to you
You are rehearsing to be a catwalk model
You think you are a weather forecaster
You have just run a marathon
You behave as if you are a police officer
You are passionate about needlework and knitting

You think you are in a rock band
You believe you are the host or hostess of the party
You are convinced you are a detective in a crime novel
You are only at the party because you have nowhere else to go
You try to chat up everyone you meet
You think you are watching a sports match
You take literally and seriously anything that is said to you
You multi-task all the time and bring your work to the party
You are in politics and try to convince everyone to support you
You detest parties
You attempt to advertise the party to everyone
You take over every conversation
You think everything anyone says is a huge joke
