

Sentence structure

Cut up the clauses below and try to match up the sentences. Try the clauses in different places and decide which position is most effective.

Martin, Mark, Matthew and Natalie headed down the street in silence for a while,	Mark and Matthew waited on the corner while Martin walked head down a little.
As they continued to walk,	the gang just walked straight through.
Like thousands before them,	speeding over speed humps, driving on the wrong side of the road and near missing everything.
Now the car was mounting the pavement,	Martin's dance routine became the main topic of conversation.
When they arrived at the top of Natalie's street,	they heard the sound of screeching tyres.
As they walked through the centre of the estate,	the sound of a car being raced.
From the back of the police car,	until Natalie opened the debate.
	observing the ritual whilst trying not to be caught looking.
Mark and Matthew were on the corner,	two police officers struggled with their bare hands to try and open the car door to free Martin.
Back at the crashed car,	Mark shouted as loud as he could, "That's my mate Martin. I wanna go with him, we're together."