

Thinking about poetry

In pairs, ask each other the following questions. Keep a record of the answers.

1. How many poems have you read?
2. Have you enjoyed reading them?
3. Do you have a favourite poem?
4. Can you repeat any lines that you remember from a poem?
5. What kinds of poem do you like most? Can you give an example?
6. What kinds of poems do you like least? Can you give an example?
7. Have you written any poems?
8. Were they good?
9. Can you repeat any lines that you remember from a poem you have written?
10. Why do you think you read poems in your English lesson?

Use your partner's answers to the questions to help you put together a few sentences that sum up your partner's attitude to poetry.

Thinking about poetry

In pairs, ask each other the following questions. Keep a record of the answers.

1. How many poems have you read?
2. Have you enjoyed reading them?
3. Do you have a favourite poem?
4. Can you repeat any lines that you remember from a poem?
5. What kinds of poem do you like most? Can you give an example?
6. What kinds of poems do you like least? Can you give an example?
7. Have you written any poems?
8. Were they good?
9. Can you repeat any lines that you remember from a poem you have written?
10. Why do you think you read poems in your English lesson?

Use your partner's answers to the questions to help you put together a few sentences that sum up your partner's attitude to poetry.