

Character Development

You can use a graph to show how a character has developed during the course of a novel; see below for an example of one that has been started on Cassy.

1. Choose one of the characters from Wolf.
2. Brainstorm how they have changed during the story. How are they different at the end, from the beginning?
3. Also, make a list of the main events in the story that helped change them or helped the reader think differently about them.
4. Plan a graph to represent this – try to put in as much detail as possible.
5. Remember to label your graph and give it a title.