

Task: Write a letter to the Prime minister explaining why you think schools should get extra money for sports equipment.

Use the questions as a guide and explain what you think is wrong with this letter.

Dear Gordon,
 How are you? I'm fine, but I'm very fed up about our PE lessons at school. I'm sure the teachers' do their best but the equipment we've got is rubbish. We have no tennis balls as we've hit them all into the neighbours' gardens, the football nets have holes in them more holes than they're meant to have and the trampoline has no springs. With problems like this, it's no wonder we can't get enough people for a football team and always come last in the league. If you gave us some money, we might be able to do better. See you later John.

1. What is wrong with the tone here?

2. What is wrong with this adjective?

3. Why isn't it very convincing to say how bad the school is at sport?

4. What's wrong to mention the money here?

5. What is wrong with the layout of the letter?
