

DRAMATIC MONOLOGUE – a poem in the voice of a specific character who is NOT the poet. It shows the reader what the narrator's character is like by what s/he says about others

ENJAMBEMENT – where the lines run into one another, rather than being end-stopped.

DISMISSIVE LANGUAGE – words and phrases which “put someone/thing down”

© www.morelearning.net 2011

DRAMATIC MONOLOGUE – a poem in the voice of a specific character who is NOT the poet. It shows the reader what the narrator's character is like by what s/he says about others

ENJAMBEMENT – where the lines run into one another, rather than being end-stopped.

DISMISSIVE LANGUAGE – words and phrases which “put someone/thing down”

© www.morelearning.net 2011

DRAMATIC MONOLOGUE – a poem in the voice of a specific character who is NOT the poet. It shows the reader what the narrator's character is like by what s/he says about others

ENJAMBEMENT – where the lines run into one another, rather than being end-stopped.

DISMISSIVE LANGUAGE – words and phrases which “put someone/thing down”

© www.morelearning.net 2011

DRAMATIC MONOLOGUE – a poem in the voice of a specific character who is NOT the poet. It shows the reader what the narrator's character is like by what s/he says about others

ENJAMBEMENT – where the lines run into one another, rather than being end-stopped.

DISMISSIVE LANGUAGE – words and phrases which “put someone/thing down”

© www.morelearning.net 2011