

Respect for Atticus

Use the graph below to plot the respect various characters have for Atticus at different points through the novel. You need to use three colours: one for Scout's opinion (the one for close friends' and allies' opinions (such as Miss Maudie and Calpurnia) and one for other residents of Maycomb and the surrounding area (such as Tom Robinson). You need to find quotations that reflect the respect that characters have for Atticus. Once you have found quotations through the novel link together each line of quotations of the same colour to see at which points through the novel respect for Atticus rises and falls; you may find that some characters change their views more than others. In the example below, Scout's opinion is outlined in yellow, friends' views in blue and other characters in red.
